BIO

Elaine Del Valle is a Native New York Latina. She began her career as an actress and trained at Carnegie Hall's Wynn Handman Studios. Elaine garnered critical acclaim, with her autobiographical, off Broadway stage play, Brownsville Bred. Elaine began casting in 2010, when after having seen her play, a Spanish language ad agency, commercial producer offered her the opportunity. Elaine went on to cast hundreds of commercials, and develop as a Casting Director outside of her niche Spanish-language and commercial market. Elaine prides herself on discovering, and nurturing BIPOC talent, as well as supporting emerging Female and LatinX Writers and Directors. She was recognized with the Latino Media Salon "Madrina" (Godmother) award, The Official Latino "Vanguard" award, and as an inspirational figure in the PBS documentary, "Beating The Odds." Elaine has produced numerous films. As a writer, she sold her original pilot to the CBS network. As a Director, her award-winning films can be seen on HBOMax. Elaine is a WarnerMedia 150 Artist and a Sundance Lab alumna.
